1. Personal Financial Consulting involves counsel, analysis and/or research provided on an hourly basis at $150 per hour, and does not include investment management services or comprehensive financial planning. This Service is highly customized with advice unique to each client based on their inquiries and current situation. The advice is objective, professional, and might include topics such as:
 - Review, definition and prioritization of financial goals.
 - Strategies to achieve goals.
 - Debt management.
 - Risk tolerance and investment objectives.
 - Review of existing portfolio assets and allocations.
 - Asset allocation.
 - Diversification.
 - Fee analysis of current portfolios.
 - Account structure/management.

Clients often choose to discuss topics specific to certain challenges they experience in managing financial matters or to discuss those related to certain decisions they may be involved in making. Clients are responsible for implementation of any or all actions taken and it is assumed they will be implemented with qualified licensed professionals who are adhering to all regulations, suitability and fiduciary rules that govern them.

2. Personal Financial Plans are provided on a fee basis and begin at a minimum fee of $1,850. This service may be conducted considering single or multiple financial goals including retirement planning, generating cash flow, education funding, and addressing estate planning issues. The base service involves 3 sessions with Client and Adviser, up to 6 hours in total, and also covers Advisor time involved in preparation of the Plan.

As a Certified Financial Planning Professional, or CFP®, Trish Howe follows the steps recommended by the CFP® Board of Standards in preparing, delivering and monitoring a financial plan. These steps are:

- a. Gather relevant data.
- b. Define goals and determine assumptions upon which the plan will be based.
- c. Analyze and evaluate current financial status.
- d. Develop and present written recommendations.
- e. Discuss and explain impact of recommendations on Client's ability to meet goals and objectives.
- f. Recommendations for client implementation and action.

Clients are responsible for gathering their current financial data used in the Plan, and for updating this information if there are material changes during the planning process. Any changes in financial status must be submitted to Adviser prior to delivery of the Plan in order to be included. Mutually agreed upon assumptions will be made about portfolio earnings rates, inflation and estimated living and other expenses. Client may change assumptions used in the analysis, which may differ from those recommended by the Adviser, as long as there is mutual agreement that the changes are sound and reasonable. The Client will have the discretion to accept, modify or reject any of the recommendations as presented.

Like any plan, the Personal Financial Plan will not assure achievability of specific goals or reasonableness of assumptions used, however, it can provide Clients a framework in which to evaluate different financial decisions, and consider the impact on specified financial goals. It is likely that actual results will differ from projections since it is not possible to accurately predict future variables. The Plan does require monitoring and updating in order to remain relevant on an ongoing basis.

After the Plan is prepared and reviewed, the Client will decide whether to implement some or all of the recommendations, and may, under separate agreement, retain the Firm for Personal Financial Consulting or Investment Management Services related to implementation of the Plan.

If the Client is not using the Firm's Investment Management Service, it is assumed that any actions taken on recommendations within the Plan will be done so with qualified, licensed professionals that ensure suitability and follow all regulations governing them. The Firm will not be responsible for the outcome of investment strategies or financial decisions made by the Client with, or without, other advisors.

3. Investment Management Service is provided on a fully discretionary basis and fees are a percentage of the market value of assets managed. The Investment Management Services process uses the principles of asset allocation, diversification and cost effective management to optimize results. The portfolios are managed by Howe Financial Advisory, LLC using individual securities, exchange traded funds and/or closed or open-ended mutual funds. All Investment Management Clients' portfolios will be managed according to the agreed upon Investment Policy and Guidelines which is part of the Investment Management Agreement signed at the beginning of the engagement. Clients may impose restrictions on investing in certain securities or types of securities. Client's assets are held at a third-party custodian/broker who sends account statements independently of Adviser reports, and provides reporting including account performance which is exclusive of Adviser's management fee stated in the Agreement.

Within the fixed income market various types of bonds are used including corporate, government, certificates of deposit, high-yield and municipal bonds, which favoring individual securities to better control costs and principal fluctuation.

The Client's investment objective is two-fold: to match or exceed the return of corresponding asset indices, and at the same time, take steps to minimize the volatility of portfolio market value or "risk".
